ing general; also Libraries repaired.

ADVERTISEMENT.

THE encreased marks of favour with which the COURT and CITY GUIDE has been received in the most elegant circles, first excited an idea, that a List of all the STREETS and PUBLIC PLACES, would meet with no less encouragement in the polite and commercial world. While the novelty of this plan attracts notice, its utility must be obvious to every description of persons.

The first part of the work contains a correct alphabetical list of the STREETS, LANES, COURTS, ALLEYS, YARDS, &c. in London and its vicinity, to the distance of about Five Miles, (being nearly 11,000.)

The second comprehends the names of the QUAYS and WHARFS, and of the different kind of goods shipped or landed at each. It also gives a separate account of the CHURCHES, CHAPELS, HOSPITALS, and other CHARITIES, PUBLIC OFFICES, BUILDINGS, SOCIETIES, COMPANIES HALLS, COURTS, INNS OF LAW, PRISONS, DISSENTING, and other RELIGIOUS MEETINGS, with a regular list of all the ANCIENT and MODERN FREEMASONS LODGES in London, &c. the Monthly nights of meeting, and where the Lodges are held, &c. &c.

Public favour, instead of relaxing, serves only to invigorate the editor, and it shall be the fondest object of his wishes, to make assiduity and gratitude keep pace with that liberality, which he has so often experienced from a liberal public.

If any errors or omissions should take place in a first attempt of so arduous a nature, the editor will be happy to receive all such communications as may enable him to make his work as perfect as possible.

His subscribers may rest assured, in order to render a future edition of this undertaking still more worthy of their patronage, that no labour or expence shall be spared, by

Their most grateful,

And most devoted

Humble Servant,

Norris Street

P. BOYLE.
